PRESENTATION TECHNIQUE

Get your message across

Whether you are selling, presenting ideas, describing visions, presenting projects, or something else, you need the attention of your audience. The presentation techniques course teaches you how to get this. You will get tools, training, and feedback to help you stand up in front of a group of people and present with impact.

Through theory, methods, and practical exercises in presentation techniques, you will practise appearing convincing, increase your impact and improve the standard of your presentations.

Participant Profile

The course is for everyone who wants to increase their agile insight and competencies and would like to achieve an internationally recognised certification of their skills.

Whether you work with management or development, this course provides you with a better starting point for working in an agile context.

The course is relevant for new Scrum Masters who want an improved understanding and a solid agile toolbox, but also for experienced Scrum Masters who seek inspiration and wish to sharpen their competencies.

It is not a requirement, but it is an advantage if you have prior knowledge of agile project management (e.g. from the courses in Agile Project management or Digital project management 2).

“The most important thing I learned was how to balance the framework with real-world scenarios. The instructor presented the values, principles, and best practices of scrum, but still emphasised it needs to be thought out in a context, which is unique to the industry, company, etc.

– Amanda Teixeira Pinto, Private Participant

Programme structure and content

---

In this course, we will work with the methods and theories within rhetoric. Most importantly, the course offers numerous exercises, which will help you focus on exactly what you need. Individualised feedback helps us pinpoint what works for you when you present and how you can improve.

During this course you will work with:

- 🕒 The good presentation
- 🕒 The good script
- 🕒 Handling your nerves
- 🕒 The modes of appeal and your credibility
- 🕒 The power of body language
- 🕒 Video analysis, preparation and workshop

This course combines modern rhetorical theory with extensive practical training, including individual exercises and feedback in a safe environment. Selected sessions are recorded to help you clearly see your strengths and areas for improvement. Participants also learn to give each other constructive feedback, ensuring everyone leaves with valuable insights for further development.

The programme is delivered over two days, held approximately three weeks apart. The first day introduces key concepts and foundational practice, while the second day builds on your experience with additional theory and advanced exercises to further strengthen your presentation skills.
